Zim's 2001 move
Mover identity and WTC access

Finding: The physical mover remains unidentified. No primary record located in this review establishes a Zim moving job, subcontract or authorized WTC access for Urban Moving Systems (UMS) or Max Movers.

The public record supports a planned relocation from 1 World Trade Center to Norfolk. American Shipper announced the September move on April 3, 2001. Hunter Management coordinated the project, and Gee's Group developed the Norfolk building. Those roles do not identify the carrier that packed or transported the office contents. No alternative physical carrier was verified either. [S1-S3]

Building-specific result

Building	What is established	UMS / Max access
WTC 1 North Tower	The released tenant list identifies Zim at floor 16, suite 1601. The Norfolk relocation is documented. [S1, S5]	No job order, badge, dock booking, elevator reservation or crew/vehicle match located.
WTC 2 South Tower	No specific customer or moving job connecting either company was identified.	Not established; no inference from Zim's WTC 1 tenancy.
WTC 7	No specific customer or moving job connecting either company was identified.	Not established; requires a separate building and tenant inquiry.

The most useful additions

A precise lease-file locator. The Port Authority release lists Zim's suite 1601 lease from March 1, 1996 to February 28, 2006. The report is headed "as of October 26, 2000"; it is not a verified occupancy roster for September 11, 2001. [S5, PDF p.3 / printed p.1]

A specific administrative paper trail. Another tenant's historical WTC lease required written permission for bulky moves and advance notice for special freight-elevator service, which incurred a charge. Zim's equivalent authorization and extra-service billing are concrete targets; its own lease terms still need verification. [S6, Exhibit R, rules 36-38(c)]

This is a bounded "not found" result. The investigation did not establish that a job never occurred, that every relevant file survives, or that all surviving files have been searched. Even a confirmed ordinary moving job would not establish explosives placement.

Insurance papers and documented jobs

What the August 10 fax actually documents

The 12:32 p.m. fax on UMS letterhead sends carrier identifiers to DeBellis Insurance and asks for confirmation that the application is on its way. A handwritten note requests vehicle-registration copies. No Zim customer, WTC address, moving date or subcontract appears. [S7, PDF p.13; duplicate p.32]

Company named	Carrier identifiers
Urban Moving Systems, Inc.	MC 320465 / USDOT 691256
Max Movers, Inc.	MC 398463 / USDOT 923345

The separate FBI Philadelphia interview records an employee's account that UMS handled local work, Max handled long-distance work, and both shared an owner and premises. This is evidence of reported common operation, not a complete corporate ownership history. [S8, PDF p.4]

Job register

Date / building or route	Customer; vendor; subcontractor	Personnel / documented work / source
Late Aug-early Sep 2001 1 WTC, floor 16 / suite 1601 to Norfolk	Customer: Zim-American. Physical vendor: unidentified. Subcontractors: unidentified.	Hunter / James A. Pirot: owner's representative. Nadav Kaplan: relocation project manager. Drivers and moving crew unknown. September 4 opening and later September 5 staff-move reporting do not date every truckload. [S2-S5]
10 Sep 2001 Union City residential building; not WTC	Customer: redacted tenant. Vendor: Urban Moving Company, as recorded. Subcontractor: not identified.	Three movers recalled by a building worker. A separate interview records an elevator request and a faxed insurance certificate supplied to the FBI. This documents ordinary residential work. [S9, PDF pp.71-73]
10-11 Sep 2001 Weehawken to Ohio and Illinois; not WTC	Customers: private, names redacted. Vendor: UMS. Subcontractor: not identified.	Two workers using a rented Penske truck. FBI reports customer corroboration of deliveries in Worthington, Ohio, and Evanston, Illinois; toll receipts support travel. This does not account for other crews. [S8, pp.2-3; S10, p.3]

These are the relevant located jobs, not a complete company dispatch history. Zim's project managers are not identified as the physical moving crew. The two Pennsylvania detainees associated with the Midwest deliveries are distinct from the five New Jersey detainees.

Strongest unresolved record targets

Priority reflects how directly a record could identify the mover. The custodians below are likely or candidate holders; survival and current custody have not been confirmed.

Priority / record	Likely custodian and locator	What it could establish
1. Vendor and payment file Bids, purchase orders, move contract, invoices, payments, bills of lading and subcontract schedules.	Zim-American's corporate facilities, procurement and accounting archives; 2001 NYC-to-Norfolk relocation.	Contracting carrier, dates, scope, paid subcontractors. A prime-contractor name alone would not exclude undisclosed subcontracting.
2. Hunter project file Vendor selection, move plan, COIs and signoffs.	Historical Hunter Management file; James A. Pirot. KPI Projects International / Nadav Kaplan are additional project-record leads. [S2]	Who arranged the physical move and whether multiple carriers or employee household moves were involved. Present file custody remains unknown.
3. WTC approval and billing Written move consent, dock/elevator bookings, package passes, overtime invoices.	Port Authority and 1 WTC property-management archives, including records transferred after the July 2001 lease change; potential ABM records. Target Zim suite 1601. [S5-S6, S12]	Approved dates, carrier and floor access; possible crew/vehicle identifiers. Compare routine and after-hours movements separately.
4. Norfolk receiving file Delivery tickets, receiving logs, COIs, punch lists and turnover correspondence.	Zim and Gee's Group; 5801 Lake Wright Drive, Norfolk. [S3]	An independently generated carrier name or delivery signature, including evidence of an ordinary unrelated mover.
5. FBI insurance exhibits Original insurance application, vehicle schedules and attachments.	FBI Newark: the DeBellis interview says supplied documents were kept in a 1A with the case file; interview relates to NK1765. [S7, pp.1-3]	Vehicle and insured-entity identity for comparison with any independently located access record. Insurance alone cannot establish a destination.
6. Cataloged event files Background notes, contacts and attachments.	Library of Virginia, Gilmore records, Series XIX, accession 40173: Box 137/F1 (2 Apr 2001) and Box 137/F87 (18 Oct 2001). [S13-S15]	Project contacts and possible attached deal papers. Folder contents are not online; no moving contract is presumed.

Two custody refinements

ABM: Zurich v. ABM, 265 F. Supp. 2d 302, 304-305, identifies after-hours freight-elevator use. It cites Borja affidavit Ex.15 (Butler email, May 23, 2002, Bates ABM022692), Ex.23 (McNeil deposition pp.28-31) and Ex.27 (Vataj deposition pp.57-58, 60-61). These are existing litigation locators for operating arrangements, not Zim job records. [S12]

Hunter: Pirot's later Cresa work and present firm biography establish professional continuity. They do not show that Cresa or Pirot & Associates inherited Hunter Management's 2001 files. [S16-S17]

The UMS attribution

An explicit claim that UMS moved Zim appears in Wayne Madsen's September 2005 article, reproduced by Bellaciao with a September 20 date. That passage supplies no invoice, named moving witness or access record. It remains an allegation requiring independent confirmation. A separately indexed Online Journal version is dated September 21; its PDF was unavailable during this review. This establishes a located publication trail, not the first appearance anywhere. [S11]

What the available records can and cannot decide

The April announcement supports advance planning. Journal of Commerce reported staff and computer systems still at the WTC on September 11, challenging an account of complete prior evacuation. Neither fact identifies the carrier or excludes a subcontract. [S1, S4]

Publicly indexed reporting, developer material, released investigative records, historical lease language, court opinions and archival catalogs were checked. No original Zim vendor-selection file, moving contract, invoice, bill of lading, subcontractor list, job-specific insurance certificate, dock/elevator booking or access log was recovered. The named contractor and project-manager leads must not be relabeled as movers.

Some contemporary articles were available only as later transcriptions; original print pagination was unavailable. Redactions, imperfect OCR, blocked mirrors and unexamined private or archival files limit the negative finding. No custodians were contacted and no records requests, reproduction orders or paid searches were submitted.
